The image shows a blank, multi-page character sheet for a tabletop RPG, likely Dungeons & Dragons. The sheet is organized into several columns and rows. At the top left, there's a section for "CANTRIPS" with a header box containing the number "0". Below this are ten horizontal lines for notes. To the right of the cantrip section are two columns of ten horizontal lines each, representing spell slots for levels 1 through 9. Each column has a header box at the top with its respective level number (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9). The first column also includes a "PREPARED" section with a header box containing the number "1". On the far left edge, there is a vertical column labeled "SPELLS KNOWN" with a series of ten small circles, each corresponding to a slot for a known spell. The entire sheet is designed to be printed on both sides of a page, with faint lines and fold marks visible.
